Burning the Midnight Silicone

With so many coding plural noun in DES 157 it can be easy to become emotion. You know that feeling, when you've been up all night coding until your part of body plural want to fall off. Me too, I've been there.

When you find yourself in that mental state, do yourself a favor and take a break. A good nights verb is your best friend. When you wake up, have another go at that adjective code error. 9/10 times a fresh pair of part of body plural will help you verb your code with more clarity. When you verb the error, rejoice in your adjective ending in -ness, and remember how adjective you feel right now the next time you get stuck
